

Abstract

There is disclosed a technique for link adaptation, suitable for a packet switched mobile communication system, in which a command or request to change the mode of a codec in a transmitter is sent only responsive to a desired change in such mode.